Analytical methods are being applied to understand the role of lipid oxidation in the progression of eye diseases such as age-related macular degeneration and glaucoma.