Meeting Minutes
November 17, 2016

In attendance: Johnny Sams, Jim Nauer, Charles Knox, Paul Keeley, Patricia Greene, Renee Holland-Golphin, Maria Sharron, Damian Junk, Michelle Lampton, Carolyn Washick, Stephanie Hathaway

AGENDA ITEMS:

The committee was introduced to Michelle Lampton, the new Assistant Director of the Professional Development and Learning Center. Michelle asked the committee for thoughts on the history of former proposals for a university Ombudsman. Generally, the committee shared that there has been, and still is, very serious concern about adequate and unbiased representation for staff when staff come forward with grievances and/or concerns. It has been, and still is, generally the perception of committee members and, by extension, staff, that the scales of “justice” are tilted in favor of management when staff come forward with grievances and/or concerns. The committee has reported and continues to report that it receives anecdotal information from staff citing the aforementioned perception. As has been stated before, it is the business of the committee to listen for patterns of information from staff, then share observation of such patterns with administration. It is not the charge of the committee to collect quantitative data, especially given the confidentiality concerns.

Question was raised as to the connection, if any, between Michelle’s mediation role and the Employee Relations division of HR. It was indicated that while each entity may refer clients to one another, details of such resulting interviews will not be shared between entities. Additionally, once a mediation proceeding begins, the contents of such proceedings are protected, except in cases where any employee involved has been reasonably suspected of being in violation of certain laws. It was indicated that while mediation is a potential alternative for staff to address concerns, only specific situations are appropriate for use of this service. For example, if there are communication issues between two parties, then mediation may be an appropriate option. However, if the nature of any concerns involve overtime, then this falls outside of the scope of mediation. In such cases, Employee Relations would be an option for a starting point in addressing the concern. It was indicated that the specific details of how a process would work between the mediator and Employee Relations is still being worked out.

Continued discussion of the “Employment” section of the HR Policy Manual. Concern was raised about the 90-day orientation for new hires and the issues it raises for staff hired into the university Police department. Given the nature of the responsibilities in this department, it was suggested that the 90-day orientation period is not sufficient to ensure such staff are appropriately trained. A six-month orientation period was suggested. HR indicated that the issue has been discussed before, given that there is a small group of departments that have similar logistical concerns. The committee suggested that, at the very least, language be inserted into department manuals specifying a six-month orientation period, so that extensions under the 90-day policy are not perceived as performance concerns. It is unclear what, if any, solution will be implemented.

Discussed the question of whether rehires may be able to reclaim any status held prior to leaving the university. HR indicated that, currently, in the case of voluntary departures, such staff would not be eligible for reclamation of any former status held. Layoffs, however, would be eligible. Involuntary dismissals are not eligible for rehire at all. However, HR is considering proposing that such cases be eligible for rehire after five years, depending on the specific circumstances of the former dismissal.

Discussed exit interviews. Question was raised as to whether disgruntled or relatively happy employees use them. HR indicated that it is a mixture of both. Question was also raised as to whether what is shared is actually used and HR indicated that it is. In cases where issues are brought up that require investigation, investigations are carried out. Also discussed practice of individual departments conducting their own exit interviews in addition to HR’s. Question was raised as to whether such departments share their exit interviews with HR. HR indicated that they are only aware of such interviews if they are shared. Committee raised concern about potentially vital information from these interviews not reaching HR. It does not appear that there is any plan to address the issue.

Discussed emergency university closings and ramifications for “essential staff”. Clarification was sought on the nature of pay received by hourly essential staff in such cases. The pay in such instances is indicated as time and one half. Also discussed need for clarification about who is “essential” vs. “non-essential”. It is currently up to managers to make the determination as to who in their department is what.

Paul to continue with review his section in the next meeting. If time permits, Maria is scheduled to present comments on her assigned section as well.

Meeting adjourned at 5:00 p.m.

Respectfully Submitted,

Johnny Sams
