October 3, 2004
NSRC Selects Student Debaters for Mock Vice Presidential Debates

Contact: Erin Brown
615-584-7967
erin.m.brown@vanderbilt.edu

Cleveland, OH (Case Western Reserve University)- Yesterday evening, after a visit from Ohio Senator Coughlin (R), the National Student Republican Committee selected debaters for Monday night’s mock Vice Presidential debate to be held at Thwing Center on Case Western’s campus, 11111 Euclid Ave. at 7 p.m.

The NSRC selected four debaters, each of whom will represent the Republican Party’s platform for one specific policy area. The debate is broken down into sections regarding the economy, domestic policy, social issues, and national security.

Cedric Logan, a senior at the University of Rochester, will be debating a student Democrat on issues regarding domestic policy. Logan is majoring in Political Science and Philosophy.

Ken Nesmith will debate issues of national security. Nesmith is a senior at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) where he is studying Biochemistry and Political Science.

Furthering the NSRC’s boasts of diversity, Fitzgerald Heslop of Fisk University will debate social issues for the Republicans. Heslop, an African-American, is a senior at Fisk and is majoring in Political Science and Public Administration.

Also selected to debate was Party Secretary Shaan Ghandi. Ghandi, of host university Case Western Reserve University, will be debating on the topic of the economy. Ghandi is a sophomore studying Economics and Biochemistry.

The Student Vice Presidential debate is part of the “The Race at Case.”

(For information, student delegates will be available in 14 Crawford Hall, Case Western Reserve University until 5:00 p.m.)

#######