On Saturday, March 28, president Barbara Snyder (left) and deputy provost Lynn Singer (far right) were awarded the Equality Award by the Human Rights Campaign at the HRC's 16th Annual Celebrating the Fine Art of Equality dinner. They were presented with the awards by last year's honoree, Case Western social worker Jane Daroff (center). Both Snyder and Singer were recognized by HRC for their efforts to promote lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender rights as well as their work on creating more diversity in the workplace.

"President Snyder [was honored] for her overall diversity statements that she's incorporated since she took the presidency, and Lynn Singer for her work especially with the LGBT community," said student Mitchell Delaney, adding that Singer has helped to establish the LGBT Taskforce on campus in addition to giving support to Case Spectrum.
