DESTINATION WEEKEND

Constance Hill-Johnson (Connie) is the Owner and Managing Director of Visiting Angels Living Assistance Services in Cleveland Ohio. Visiting Angels is an in-home service provider assisting the elderly and older adults to live as independently as possible by remaining safely in their own familiar home environment.

Now a seasoned entrepreneur, Connie started her business in 2002, and after 23 years, has successfully served hundreds of seniors throughout the greater Cleveland area and surrounding communities. She spent many years working in both the financial services and healthcare arena. A graduate of Case Western Reserve University and The University of Southern California, Connie is regarded as both a dynamic motivational leader and speaker who shares with audiences her entrepreneurial journey owning a homecare agency and as an adult caregiver caring for her mother with dementia. She spends time coaching and encouraging women to move forward with their hopes and dreams, sharing her experiences, good and bad, while reminding them that no time is the perfect time.

Her commitment to the community is unwavering. She recently completed her term as the first African American woman to serve as Board Chairperson for The Cleveland Foundation, the oldest community foundation in the country. The Cleveland Magazine named her one of 2024's Most Interesting People and Crain's Cleveland Business recognized her in 2023 as a Notable Nonprofit Board Leader. In 2020 she was honored as a YWCA Greater Cleveland Woman of Achievement winner and in 2017 honored as a Crain's Women of Note. Most recently she was selected as Woman of the Year by the Women's Business Center of ECDI. She also serves on the board of the Benjamin Rose Institute on Aging (BRIA) and is actively involved in other community and civic organizations. She is one of the architects of The Soul of Philanthropy Cleveland & Celebrate Those Who Give Black, exhibits which reframe how philanthropy looks in the African American community.

A committed philanthropist with a servant's heart, Ms. Hill-Johnson is committed to giving of her time, talent, treasure and testimony.
