Health Savings Accounts & High Deductible Health Plans
Definitions

Consumer Driven Health Plan (“CDHP”)
A health insurance plan designed to give you more control over your health care spending. CDHPs incorporate a personal health savings account to pay your health care expenses, while high deductible health insurance protects you from catastrophic medical expenses.

Health Savings Account (“HSA”)
A tax-advantaged personal savings account similar to an IRA but used specifically to pay qualified health care expenses. Unused funds carryover to following year.

Health Care Flexible Spending Account (“Health FSA”)
A personal savings account funded by pre-tax employee contributions used to pay qualified health care expenses. Unused funds are lost at end of the plan year.

High Deductible Health Plan (“HDHP”)
A health insurance plan with lower premiums and higher deductibles than a traditional health insurance plan.

Making HSA Contributions

IRS says you are eligible to make HSA contributions if you:

1. Are covered by a Qualified HDHP
2. Have no other health insurance coverage
   • Permitted exceptions = dental, vision, long term care, disability, another qualified HDHP
   • Health FSA coverage during the grace period could make you ineligible until April 1
   • Spouse’s Health FSA could make you ineligible!
   • Adult dependent’s other coverage could make you ineligible
3. Are not enrolled in Medicare
   • “Enrolled in Medicare” includes Part A, Part B and/or Part D
4. Cannot be claimed as a dependent on someone else’s tax return

Consult a tax professional for questions about your eligibility to make HSA contributions
Using Your HSA Funds

Tax-free distributions for qualified health care expenses, including
• HDHP deductibles
• HDHP co-insurance
• Prescription drugs, including prescribed OTC medications
• Certain insurance premiums – COBRA, Medicare, long term care
• See IRS Publications 502 & 969 for more details

Expenses incurred before you establish your HSA do not qualify
• State law determines when the HSA is established

HSA distributions for non-qualified expenses are taxable
