General Capstone Housing Information

All students are responsible for organizing their own housing both during the intensive session and for the capstone experience.

On Campus Housing for Intensives
Only students with existing on campus housing assignments, in a residence hall or a university-operated Greek House, qualify for transitional housing on campus during the intensive period.

There is a daily rate for transitional housing, contact Residence Life for more information about transitional housing costs. Transitional housing may not be the same as your regular housing assignment.

May Intensives
Students must have a spring housing assignment in order to qualify for transitional housing during the May intensives.

Students must contact Residence Life to arrange for transitional housing and summer housing if necessary.

August Intensives
Students must have a fall housing assignments in order to qualify for transitional housing during the August intensives.

Students must contact Residence Life to arrange for transitional housing.

Residence Life Contact Information
https://students.case.edu/living/housing/housing@case.edu
216-368-3780

Distance Sites Housing Information
The housing options at each distance site are different based on the site location. For capstone sites associated with a university, on campus housing is often available. However, there are times when their facilities are full and the students must find alternative housing. The distance site university may provide students with possible housing options, but it is the responsibility of the student to make the arrangements.

For distance sites not associated with a university, students often rent an apartment or a room in a house for the duration of their capstone experience. The capstone site preceptors may provide suggestions; however, it is the responsibility of the student to secure the housing.

More specifics about typical housing options specific to each site are included with the site descriptions and can be reviewed before submitting you application.