

FRANCES PAYNE BOLTON
SCHOOL OF NURSING

CASE WESTERN RESERVE
UNIVERSITY

Welcome to Nurses Month 2020!

Now more than ever the public is witnessing the brave, compassionate, expert care provided by nurses around the globe. Nurse leaders everywhere, including those on the front line of care delivery, are key providers in the current coronavirus pandemic.

During the month of May we will be highlighting the nursing leadership of our students, alumni, faculty, and staff. We will draw from the World Health Organization's State of World's Nursing 2020 report to share the latest evidence on the global nursing workforce, posit policy options for investing in the future of nursing, and situate these opportunities within understandings of the U.N. Sustainable Development Goals.

We hope you read these weekly newsletters informative and let them inspire you. We invite you to engage with us about the stories we share by telling us your own. You can do so by reaching out to us on your favorite social media platform with the #FPBGlobalLeaders and #FPBNursing, sending us your stories by email. Learn more at bit.ly/FPBGlobalLeaders and we look forward to celebrating with you.

"For the first time nurses are visible, let us use this unique opportunity of the year of the Nurse and Midwife and the Bi Centenary of Florence Nightingale and the State of the World's Nursing Report to showcase nursing and let society know the invaluable contribution nurses make to the global health agenda.

The first ever State of the World's Nursing Report provides an unprecedented analysis of the size and nature of the global nursing workforce by using data from 191 WHO member States. It details the key issues in nursing and the need for investment. ICN has called on Governments to commit to the recommendations in the report, however it is important that every nurse uses the report and makes their voice heard .

On behalf of ICN I would like to thank you for the great work you do today and everyday."

Annette Kennedy
President
International Council of Nurses

Find out More About the Sustainable Development Goals at <https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/>

FPB Faculty Working To Achieve the Sustainable Development Goals

Dr. Faye Gary has been working tirelessly to help achieve Sustainable Development Goal #10: Reduce inequality within and among countries.

Learn more about the work and achievements of her pioneering Provost Scholars Program and how to volunteer to help at her website.

FPB Staff Working to Achieve the SDG 4: Inclusive and Equitable Education

As a Peace Corps Volunteer, FPB Research Assistant IV C. Robin Rentrope worked to ensure inclusive & equitable quality education and health in village communities throughout Uganda. Her work is just one way that #FPBGlobalLeaders are working to achieve the #SDGs locally and globally.

Student Spotlight: Tongyao Wang

PhD student Tongyao Wang has been hard at work examining the impact of climate on physical activity in people living with HIV.

Her important work is one way that FPB students are contributing to achieving the Sustainable Development Goal 13: Taking Urgent Action to Combat Climate Change

Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing

Task Force for Global Leadership

© Copyright Case Western Reserve University
Cleveland, Ohio 44106 | 216.368.1800