

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN NURSING AT CASE WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP)

Providing comprehensive wellness care and disease management across the lifespan

About Family Nurse Practitioner

Family nurse practitioners are advanced practice nurses who offer care, promote health, and treat disease in patients ranging from children to older adults. They provide comprehensive wellness care as well as management of acute and chronic illnesses.

Clinical Partnerships

During your program you'll gain experience through at least 600 clinical hours in sites all over Northeast Ohio, or in your local area, including family, adult and pediatric primary care clinics, specialty clinics, retail clinics and Emergency Department fast tracks.

Careers

FNPs go on to practice in primary care family, adult internal medicine and pediatric settings, Federally Qualified Health Centers, retail clinics, urgent care centers and many specialty areas such as cardiology, neurology and gastroenterology.
