

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN NURSING AT CASE WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

Primary Care Pediatric Nurse Practitioner (PNP-PC)

Providing primary health care for children from birth through young adulthood

Enhancing the Health of Children

Primary Care Pediatric Nurse Practitioners (PNPs) are advanced practice nurses who provide family and community-based health care for children from infancy through early adulthood. They manage pediatric health conditions ranging from acute and common ailments to complex chronic conditions. They perform routine pediatric health supervision, provide anticipatory guidance, and promote health and wellness to pediatric patients and their families.

Clinical Partnerships

During your program you'll gain experience in:

- Pediatric primary care with nurse practitioners and physicians
- Private and hospital-affiliated pediatric practices and specialty clinics

Careers

Graduates go on to work at major children's hospitals, primary care and specialty clinics, and community health centers.
