

SOCIAL JUSTICE
INSTITUTE

SOCIAL JUSTICE FELLOWSHIPS FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS Proposal Guidelines – 2022-2023 Fellowships

The Social Justice Institute is currently accepting applications from graduate students for an exciting fellowship opportunity to support work in the 2022-2023 academic year. Graduate students seeking funding to support an MA Thesis or PhD Dissertation research are especially encouraged to apply.

Applicants should submit proposals to carry out research or implement projects related to social justice in any discipline. Social justice is defined as eradicating systems of power and oppression with the purpose of advancing fairness and equality through the redistribution of resources and opportunities and exalting human dignity and respect.

A complete application must include the following:

- A proposal of no more than three single-spaced pages in length that includes:
 - A description of the proposed research or project
 - A detailed budget explaining how the requested fellowship funds will be used (requests are permitted up to $3,500 maximum)
 - An explanation of the connection between social justice and the proposed work
 - The aim and expected outcomes of the research or project
 - A listing of all other people and entities with whom the student will be collaborating, e.g. organizations where research will be done
 - A timeline for the completion of the proposed research or project
- An explanation of no more than 250 words in length of how the fellowship will advance the student's career goals as they relate to social justice
- The names of one or more CWRU faculty members who might be suitable to serve as an active advisor for the research or project. (Potential advisors can be contacted at a later date if the applicant is awarded a fellowship. The advisor will guide the student's research and write both mid-year and final reports concerning the student's progress.)
- A resume or CV

- An unofficial CWRU transcript

Individuals awarded a fellowship will be required to:

- Complete the proposed research study or project
- Provide a written report to the Social Justice Institute at the end of the first year, either a final report of the fellowship or a progress report with a request to extend the fellowship for an additional year
- Maintain receipts and appropriate back-up for all expenditures and follow CWRU processes for financial reconciliation
- Ensure that the faculty advisor is copied on all written reports
- Deliver a presentation to members of the Social Justice Institute and invitees during the Research Lunch Series at the conclusion of the fellowship

Award guidelines:

Awards of up to $3,500 will be made to graduate students to be used for expenses associated with the research or project, subject to the number and quality of applications. The Institute is not obligated to award grants in any given year. Examples of allowable expenses include:

- Airfare to the site of the research
- Housing costs at the site of the out-of-town research
- Program supplies for projects
- Stipends for research assistants
- Gift cards to incentivize research participants for time to participate in activities such as interviews or focus groups
- Printing costs for study-related materials
- Data sets

Fellowship funds may not be used to fund costs already incurred prior to the date of the award or for research that has already been completed.

Required acknowledgement:

The applicant agrees to acknowledge the Social Justice Institute on all relevant presentations and publications. For example: This publication was made possible through funding provided by the Social Justice Institute of Case Western Reserve University. Its contents are solely the responsibility of the authors and do not necessarily represent the official views of the Social Justice Institute or Case Western Reserve University.

The applicant further agrees to allow the Social Justice Institute to retain and publicly share copies of the final project.

Submission and Questions:

Applications must be submitted c/o Ayesha Bell Hardaway, SJI Co-Director, via e-mail to socialjustice@case.edu by 5:00 pm on Friday, April 1, 2022. Applications will be reviewed and selected by a subcommittee of the Social Justice Institute. Awards will be announced in May 2022.

Questions regarding the fellowship program or applications should be directed to Ayesha BellHardaway at 216.368.6360 or ayesha.hardaway@case.edu.