

JACK, JOSEPH AND MORTON MANDEL
SCHOOL OF APPLIED SOCIAL SCIENCES

CASE WESTERN RESERVE
UNIVERSITY

11235 Bellflower Road

Cleveland, Ohio 44106-7164

msass.case.edu

DAVID B. MILLER, Ph.D., MSW, MPH Faculty Biographical Sketch

David B. Miller is an Associate Professor at the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences at Case Western Reserve University. Dr. Miller received his Ph.D. and Master of Public Health from the University of Pittsburgh in 1993 and his Master of Social Work from the University of South Carolina in 1986. Dr. Miller's current research focus is on the health status of African American males. Specifically, he is currently investigating how African American males participate in the informed decision-making process regarding cancer screening. Other research and scholarship interests include:

- Health behaviors and practices of minority men and their effects on health status/disparities within this population;
- Continued development and validation of the Urban Hassles Index (UHI) a measure of stress among adolescents and young adults living in urban environments;
- Retirement preparation and role of social workers in working across disciplines in order to assist those falling short of post-employment income streams; and
- Influence of social networks on the health and sexual behaviors of elderly adults.

Dr. Miller is currently the chair of the Health specialization and is the lead instructor for the Research sequence. He teaches courses in both the masters and doctoral programs at MSASS. His teaching interests include:

- Social Policy and Analysis;
- Social Welfare Theory;
- Health Policy; and
- Research Methods and Statistics

Dr. Miller is Director of the International Education Programs as of 1 July 2017.