

Daniel Flannery is a Distinguished University Professor and the Dr. Semi J. and Ruth W. Begun Professor and Director of the Begun Center for Violence Prevention, Research and Education in the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences (MSASS) at Case Western Reserve University (CWRU). From 1998 to 2011 he served as founding Director of the Institute for the Study and Prevention of Violence at Kent State University where in 2006 he was named a University Distinguished Scholar. He is a licensed clinical –child psychologist and a Professor of Psychiatry and Pediatrics at Case University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center. He has authored several edited volumes including Youth Violence: Prevention, Intervention and Social Policy (1999) for American Psychiatric Press and the Cambridge Handbook of Violent Behavior and Aggression (2007 and 2018) for Cambridge University Press. He is author of Violence and mental health in everyday life: Prevention and intervention for children and adolescents (2006) and Wanted on Warrants: The Fugitive Safe Surrender Program (2013). He was a committee member and co-author of the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine’s 2016 report Preventing Bullying Through Science, Policy and Practice. He has published over 130 papers and book chapters. In 2019 he was named one of the 100 most influential contemporary Social Work faculty, and in 2023 was elected Fellow of the American Academy of Social Work and Social Welfare. Flannery’s primary areas of research are in youth violence prevention, the link between violence and mental health, and community-based program evaluation. He received his PhD in 1991 in Clinical Psychology from The Ohio State University. His previous appointments were as Assistant Professor of Family Studies and Psychology at the University of Arizona, Associate Professor of Child Psychiatry at CWRU, and Professor of Criminal Justice Studies and Public Health at Kent State University. In 2008 he was appointed by the Secretary of Education to the U.S. Department of Education’s Safe and Drug Free Schools Community Advisory Committee. Dr. Flannery has generated as Principal or Co-principal investigator over 70 million dollars in externally funded research. He has served as advisor to various local and national organizations including the Institute of Medicine, the U.S. Departments of Justice and Education, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Crime Prevention Council, the National Resource Center for Safe Schools, and the Ohio School Safety Center.