

Jeff M. Kretschmar, Ph.D.

Jeff M. Kretschmar, Ph.D. is a Research Associate Professor at the Jack, Joseph, and Morton Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences of Case Western Reserve University and Managing Director and Senior Research Associate with the Begun Center for Violence Prevention Research and Education at MSASS. Dr. Kretschmar is the Principal Investigator on numerous local, state, and federally funded research and evaluation projects. Dr. Kretschmar serves as the Principal Investigator (PI) on the statewide evaluation of the Behavioral Health/Juvenile Justice Initiative, a diversion program for juvenile justice-involved youth with mental and behavioral health issues. Dr. Kretschmar leads the evaluation efforts of Cuyahoga County Court of Common Pleas High Risk Domestic Violence Docket, a federally funded effort to enhance accountability of those who commit domestic violence as well as enhance victim safety. He also is the lead evaluator of multiple specialty docket evaluations around the state for both juvenile and adult courts, including drug courts, mental health courts, veterans courts, family treatment courts, and human trafficking courts. Most recently, he was named lead evaluator for the State of Ohio-funded Child and Adolescent Behavioral Health Center of Excellence.