

Internship Program Admissions

Date Program Tables are updated:

Briefly describe in narrative form important information to assist potential applicants in assessing their likely fit with your program. This description must be consistent with the program's policies on intern selection and practicum and academic preparation requirements:

Applicants must meet the following prerequisites to be considered for our program:

1. Doctoral student in a Clinical or Counseling Psychology program accredited by the American Psychological Association (APA) or the Canadian Psychological Association (CPA).
2. Approval for internship status by graduate program's Director of Clinical Training.
3. A minimum total of 500 client intervention hours during doctoral practicum training.
4. Completion of qualifying examinations and all coursework.

Dissertation proposals must be approved before the start of the internship.

Selection Process:

The Training Director screens all applications for prerequisites and selects which applications to advance for review by the Selection Committee. The Selection Committee, comprised of senior training staff and a current Psychology Intern, read and evaluate those applications. We review applications based on the candidate's experience and expressed interest in each of our competency areas. We prefer candidates with interest and experience working with college-aged populations and in university counseling centers. We are interested in applicants who are self-reflective, self-directive, and who want to learn and experience what our site has to offer them. Case Western Reserve University's Psychology Internship Program is committed to ensuring diversity among our training cohort; we seek candidates representing different kinds of programs and theoretical orientations, geographic regions, ages, racial and ethnic backgrounds, gender and sexual identities, and physical ability statuses. After our AAPI review, we invite applicants with our highest ratings to participate in interviews held in January. We prefer video interviews, although depending on the applicant's preference or technological access, we may rely on telephone interviews. Case Western Reserve University appointments conform to legal eligibility for employment in the U.S. (sometimes called the I-9 requirement). While we do not conduct formal background checks, the training program and the University reserve the right to dismiss an applicant or an Intern if we subsequently learn that educational credentials cannot be verified or that a criminal or other record exists which would preclude employment in the University's judgment. Case Western Reserve University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer.
