Swetland Opportunities

Now Accepting Faculty Affiliate Applications:

The Swetland Center is seeking to grow its network of affiliated faculty from across a variety of disciplines to further its mission to investigate the complex interplay between the environment and health. The center uses a community-engaged research approach working alongside our community partners to translate these findings into policies and practices that promote healthy places for people to thrive.

Meet our current Faculty Affiliates!

Swetland Spotlight

What is the Mary Ann Swetland Center for Environmental Health?

The environments in which we live, work, study, and play have a great impact on our health. Environmental health science embraces all the physical, social and built infrastructure that affects health. The Swetland Center builds partnerships to find and scale solutions to redress the environment's disparate impact on low-resource populations in Cleveland and beyond.

Mission

The mission of the Mary Ann Swetland Center for Environmental Health is to study the complex interplay between the environment and health with the goal of translating these findings into policies and practices that promote community and population health.

Vision

The vision of the Mary Ann Swetland Center for Environmental Health is to leverage diverse skills and experiences through transformative research, training and community engagement in order to achieve environmental health equity by:

- Advancing applied and community-engaged environmental health research
- Integrating environmental health and community systems science into medical and graduate education and new investigator development
- Engaging the community in research translation to inform changes in policy and practice

Values

- Inclusive
- Collaborative
- Innovative
- Community-Engaged
